Introduction

The following report provides a summary of the CFSA angling year and collates the fish that CFSA member clubs have recorded and which have been forwarded to the CFSA for awards. It provides a useful and valuable record of sea angling in Cornwall over the pre-ceeding year.

In 2020, boat and shore angling activity was disrupted by the COVID 19 pandemic. This resulted in restrictions to travel and recreational activity from March 23rd until May 14th. Fortunately, this period coincided with a relatively poor period for fish returns in Cornwall although it will inevitably have reduced the overall number of fish recorded.

It is noticeable that we are observing profound changes in our fishing in Cornwall. This in part reflects continued high levels of commercial fishing effort in the waters around Cornwall, particularly by EU registered vessels on offshore grounds (within 6 miles of the shore) which have decimated some stocks. We are also directly witnessing the effects of global climate change which is also affecting the distribution and availability of fish species around our coast. This is not all entirely bad news as this phenomenon has provided some opportunities to catch novel species moving up from the Bay of Biscay. Spider crab populations have certainly increased substantially and have made rock fishing virtually impossible until the majority peel and return to deeper water in late July. Blue fin Tuna populations have also increased in abundance annually and are now a common sight. They also now appear to be influencing and impacting on other fish species, particularly, bait fish populations which in turn may be affecting the species that we like to catch.

Despite the changes and challenges, Cornwall remains unique in having a relatively large diversity of fish species to target (38 different qualifying fish species were recorded from the shore in 2020). Cornwall therefore still has the potential to produce some very good sea angling with specimen fish recorded from a range of species including new County records.

In 2019, the CFSA member clubs agreed to reduce the qualifying specimen weight for senior men back to 50% from the 75% qualifying weight for the 2020 season. Specimen qualifying weights for Ladies and Junior anglers were maintained at the one day minimum specimen weight providing these categories with a greater opportunity to record fish.

The move to a 50% qualifying weight for senior men has on the whole increased the number of fish being recorded in 2020 as well as the number of participating club anglers. It is also very encouraging to see more anglers now achieving 10 different specimens in the 10 months that were available to fish. Achieving 10 different specimens is very much a personal target as much as anything else and demonstrates good angling skills as you clearly need to adapt fishing techniques throughout the year to catch 10 different qualifying specimens.

The number of junior anglers recording fish remains of concern and we should all be encouraging junior anglers to participate where we can. From the shore, only 2 fish were recorded by juniors in the 11 to 16 age group and just 10 fish in the U11 age group. Only 3 fish in total were recorded on the boat section, with just 2 fish in the U16 category and 1 in the U11 category.
